

before morning and its reply the full white body of the moon moves through the loose texture of night...

it is a lover departing without turning back accepting another extinction

in the garden

what did you expect...

this is what you get when you accept a lover who exhausts life omitting nothing and living as an omnivore leaving emotional debts.

alone in the garden.

wf.h.

1985