

does our imagination of creation and its many stories reflect nothing more than a salting of the crime scene by light dying in darkness looking for the perfect metaphor before it disappears.
lately i spend my nights thinking about what i have not thought about and it seems death will be just an incomplete diary.

an incomplete diary.
wf.h.
2018