

if hell existed
it would be devoted
to no punishments.
it would give you exactly
what you desired
over and over again
waking up the next morning
starting over and over again until it became the type of boredom that only the wealthy know.

hell would be the place that ruins the desire to desire.
hell would be the place that ruins the passion to be passionate.
it would be like burning incense inside a closed coffin.

if hell existed.
