

death is not courteous...
it does not extend hospitality.
it does not care where you have come from.
it never needs to lie.
it does not take the prayers of closed hands.
it does not take the prayers of submission.
it does not take animal sacrifices.
it does not take hard cash.
it cannot be bribed.
if you spend whatever you were going to spend
and spend it on yourself
you are thinking like a banker thinking of gains.
 i can only ask myself
 what is the memory of someone with small faith... or no memory or faith at all outside of what we have lived
 i would say
 that ignorance of being
 makes death an appropriate victor.

ignorance of being.
