

the haunting things make our small animal eyes narrow with our minds projecting into external fields where they circle around us and grow with disintegrating life....
things that are incomplete.
things that we do not want completed.
unfinished things that have been and are back.
things that do not leave without taking something with them that was never meant for them or offered but had been waiting.

there is no collective negotiation. these are Intimate disagreements of the self trying to say being and they will always be there until you do not have the answer they are looking for.

intimate disagreements.
