

every heart will stop somewhere. but i want to mine to stop where it matters before it stops finally...

and i do not want death to simply stray into the accumulation of what we have been.
it needs to see how i have needed you.

i believe poetry is more stubborn than death.

my wife.
wf.h.
2018