

reality as much as it is anything is impact and the place you should show up for with your best defensive moves. one defense can be just running away... but i start out by telling it i have a more vulnerable neighbor next door who has weak family ties. i was willing to say or do anything not to be swept away whenever it was making a clean sweep of current delusions. it was some time later that i discovered its secondary impacts from the deflected trajectories after the first one and the collateral damage assessments of its restabilizing reality only pausing just long enough to reload.

reality as much as it is anything.
