

reality is a process of elimination.

we are still eliminating things...

imagicides in the prison of emotions and impressionistic clouds

when they no longer charm us

or

when they have to clean up the festival grounds after the festival tents have come down.

can we hold imagination responsible for this.

does something else put imagination up to it.

do our senses shed our old skin because we have grown

or

do we shed our senses because they have not weathered well in the exposure.

what organizes gods and goddesses.

what organizes not gods and not goddesses.

what organizes form

what organizes reflection

what organizes nature without them.

does subtraction mandate addition.

why are senses organized for elimination.

are there senses for the source.

or is the path back home just a sentiment.
