

awareness...

the first thing i notice is how i notice what i want to see without noticing how i notice it.

the organic projector is working again pushing out images and symbols waiting to see what

and who will walk into them filling up the space of the to be defined expectations with unexpected fate.

if i kicked the can down the road and told awareness to be more aware would this be forbearance or some form of aware cynicism...

the being that i am is the last thing i noticed and the first thing i ignored.

the first thing i ignored.
