

the first weapon of choice for a teenager
is a walk away shrug.

forcing them to a second choice is probably not in your best interest nor your best choice.

try to remember that
their facial mood ring
reflects the state of their facial blemishes
and the way they respond.

not interested in advice
not particularly happy
not particularly sane... especially on the weekend.

probably it is better not to force them
into their second choice unless you have secured the area first.

the first weapon of choice.
wf.h.
2024